Thank you for sending over the [project name] files. I'm looking forward to getting started!

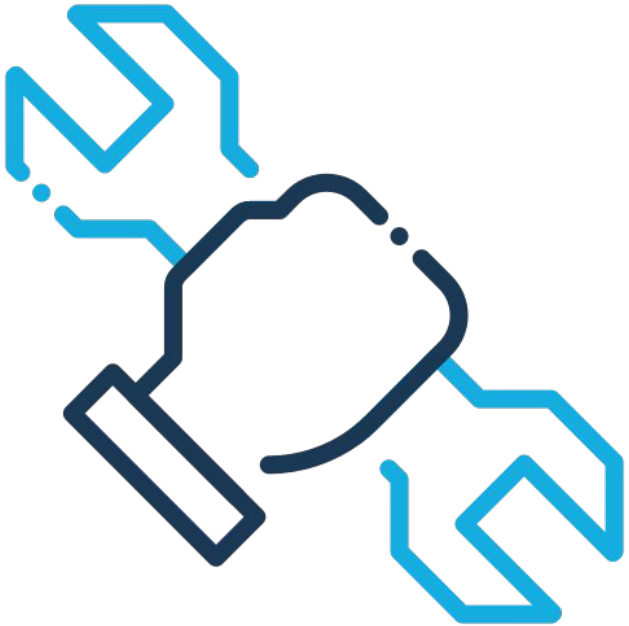

Before I begin, could you share any reference materials you have? In particular, it would be a big help to have:

- Your glossary or term base, so I can use your preferred terminology from the start
- Your style guide, covering tone, formatting, and any language-specific preferences

- Role: act as a professional EN↔ES translator with expertise in the subject matter specified in the project files
- Audience: translate/write/review for the defined target audience (e.g., patients, engineers, general public) at the appropriate reading level
- Style: follow the uploaded style guide strictly (tone, register, punctuation, capitalization)
- Terminology: prioritize the glossary and termbase; never improvise if a preferred term exists
- Consistency: ensure uniform terminology and phrasing across all segments
- Accuracy: preserve meaning, intent, and nuance; avoid omissions or additions
- Naturalness: produce text that reads as if originally written in the target language, not as a translation
- Formatting: maintain original structure, tags, placeholders, numbers, and units exactly as provided
- Variants: use the specified locale (e.g., Spanish for Mexico)
- Ambiguity: flag unclear source segments and propose 1–2 alternatives when needed
- QA: perform a final check for grammar, terminology, numbers, and formatting before delivering
- Output: provide clean final text only unless otherwise requested (no explanations or commentary)

My master briefing prompt

PRE-TRANSLATION BRIEF

(CLAUDE, UPLOAD TEXT)

I'm about to translate the attached text from [source language] into [target language and variant].

Before I start, give me a brief:
1) audience, purpose and register
2) key concepts, explained simply
3) terms I should research, and what to look for
4) likely pitfalls
5) parallel or reference texts to find (don't invent links – tell me what to search for)
6) questions to ask the client.
Flag anything you're unsure about.

Prompt: Pre-translation brief

Interpreter briefing note

Prepared by Dr. [PERSON 1] ([COMPANY 2]) for the hearing on 14 March 2026.

The witness is Mr [PERSON 3], chief engineer of the MV [PERSON 4]. Mr [PERSON 5] will testify in Spanish.

Contact him at [EMAIL 6] or on [PHONE 7]. His passport number is [ID 8] and his salary is paid to IBAN [IBAN 9].

Opposing counsel is Mrs [PERSON 10] of [PERSON 11] AS. She may ask about the incident report, reference [ID 12].

Questions about the schedule go to [PERSON 13]'s office. Ms [PERSON 14] prefers email.

The hearing starts at 9:30 in Room 4. Bring the glossary for [PERSON 15].

Role	Name	Phone
Witness	[PERSON 3]	[PHONE 7]
Arbitrator	Prof. [PERSON 16]	[PHONE 17]

The client wants the translation by 20/11/2026. Interpreters: [PERSON 18] and [PERSON 19].

The actual file I uploaded to create a pre-translation brief

3. Terms to research

Term	Candidates	What to look for hearing	vista, audiencia	The usual term in arbitration for your Spanish variety. Spain tends toward "vista" or "audiencia", Latin America toward "audiencia".
testify	declarar, prestar declaración	Whether "declarar" is standard in arbitral or judicial usage.
chief engineer	jefe de máquinas, ingeniero jefe	Spain says "jefe de máquinas". Check against the witness's nationality and flag.
MV	M/V, B/M, M/N	Whether Spanish documents keep "M/V" before a ship's name.
incident report	informe de incidente, parte de siniestro	The maritime term for casualty and incident reports.
opposing counsel	letrado/a de la parte contraria	Whether "letrado" or "abogado" is the register used in the case.
arbitrator	árbitro/a	Gender, and whether it's a sole arbitrator or a panel.
AS	(leave as is)	It's a Nordic company form, so don't translate it.

Useful sources: IATE (EU terminology), the Diccionario panhispánico del español jurídico, and

Claude's pre-translation brief: Terms to research

4. Likely pitfalls

- Placeholders: keep every [PERSON x], [ID x], [PHONE x] and so on exactly as written, with the "x" unchanged. Protect them as tags in your CAT tool. Don't contract "de + el" across a placeholder.
- Gender and honorifics: Spanish forces a gender choice you can't always make. Mr is "Sr.", and Mrs and Ms are both "Sra." because Spanish has no marital distinction. Dr. and Prof. are unknown, so "Dr./Dra." and "Prof./Profa." are guesses. Also decide the gender of "árbitro/a" in the table.
- Likely duplicates: [PERSON 3] and [PERSON 5] are probably the same witness. [PERSON 13] and [PERSON 14] may or may not be the same person. Don't merge them.
- Calques: "hearing" is not "audición", "counsel" is not "consejero", and "chief engineer" is not "ingeniero jefe" in a ship context. Translate "briefing note" as "nota informativa para intérpretes", not as "briefing".

6. Questions for the client

1. Who will read the Spanish, and for what use? Which variety (Spain or Latin America), and tú/vosotros or usted/ustedes?
2. Is the hearing date correct, given that it's a past Saturday? Is this note still current?
3. Do the last two lines ("The client wants the translation by…", "Interpreters: …") belong in the text, or are they instructions to you?
4. Passport number, IBAN and salary have no obvious place in an interpreter briefing. Should they be translated, redacted or removed, and who has approved sharing them?

INTERPRETER BRIEFING WITH DOCUMENTS

CASE 1: A PUBLIC DRAFT REPORT + 2 ATTACHMENTS (EN AND PT)
(CLAUDE, UPLOAD DOCS)

EN-PT interpreter's briefing: European Parliament CULT committee meeting item on AI in creative sectors.

Provide a detailed list of key points extracted from rapporteur's report (attached) and bilingual EN-PT glossary comprising at least 50 key terms (monolingual and bilingual) plus all relevant named entities and a summary of likely key talking points.

What came back

- Key points: recitals A–P, paragraphs 1–31, explanatory statement
- Likely talking points and fault lines
- A 96-term EN–PT glossary in three sections
- Named entities: institutions, instruments, programs, stakeholders
- Booth notes: numbers, false friends, register

EN-PT Interpreter Briefing – CULT Draft Report on Cultural and Creative Sectors in the Age of AI

Sep 28, 2026 · @Josh

The draft report 2025/2180(INI) (9.9.2026, rapporteur Hélder Sousa Silva, Committee on Culture and Education) sets Parliament's position on AI and the cultural and creative sectors ahead of the Commission's AI strategy for these sectors, expected in early 2027. Terminology below follows the official EN and PT versions of the draft.

Key points of the report

Nature of the text. Non-legislative own-initiative report (INI) with a motion for a resolution (16 recitals A–P, 31 paragraphs) and an explanatory statement. It is a Parliament position, not law; it calls on the Commission to act.

Framing (explanatory statement)

1. Close to half of European enterprises in the cultural and creative sectors (CCS) with 10+ employees already use at least one AI technology, versus under one in five across the whole economy (Eurostat).
2. The CCS employ around 8 million people and generate about 4% of EU value added, mostly small and micro enterprises, individual creators and freelancers, the actors least able to negotiate with big tech.
3. Central question: who shapes cultural production in the age of AI, under what conditions and with what intention. The report says it is not choosing between

Glossary 1 – Legal and policy terms

PT forms are those used in the official PT version of the draft unless marked (suggested). The third column is a short English gloss for context. Glossary terms are numbered continuously across the three glossary sections (96 terms), followed by the named entities.

#	EN	PT	Gloss
1	cultural and creative sectors (CCS)	setores culturais e criativos (SCC)	Report's umbrella term: music, audiovisual, books and publishing, heritage, news media, games
2	rapporteur	relator	MEP who drafts the report
3	shadow rapporteur	relator-sombra (suggested)	Political group counterpart negotiating amendments
4	motion for a resolution	proposta de resolução	Operative text Parliament votes on
5	explanatory statement	exposição de motivos	Rapporteur's non-binding rationale
6	recital ("whereas")	considerando ("Considerando que")	Lettered preamble paragraphs A–P
7	own-initiative report (INI)	relatório de iniciativa	Non-legislative report, procedure 2025/2180(INI)
8	rights holder	titular de direitos	Owner of copyright or related rights
9	reservation of rights (opt-out)	reserva de direitos	Rights holder's machine-readable refusal of AI training use
10	exclusive rights	direitos exclusivos	Right to authorise or prohibit use
11	contractual freedom	liberdade contratual

Case 1: the EN-PT briefing (official terms, not guesses)

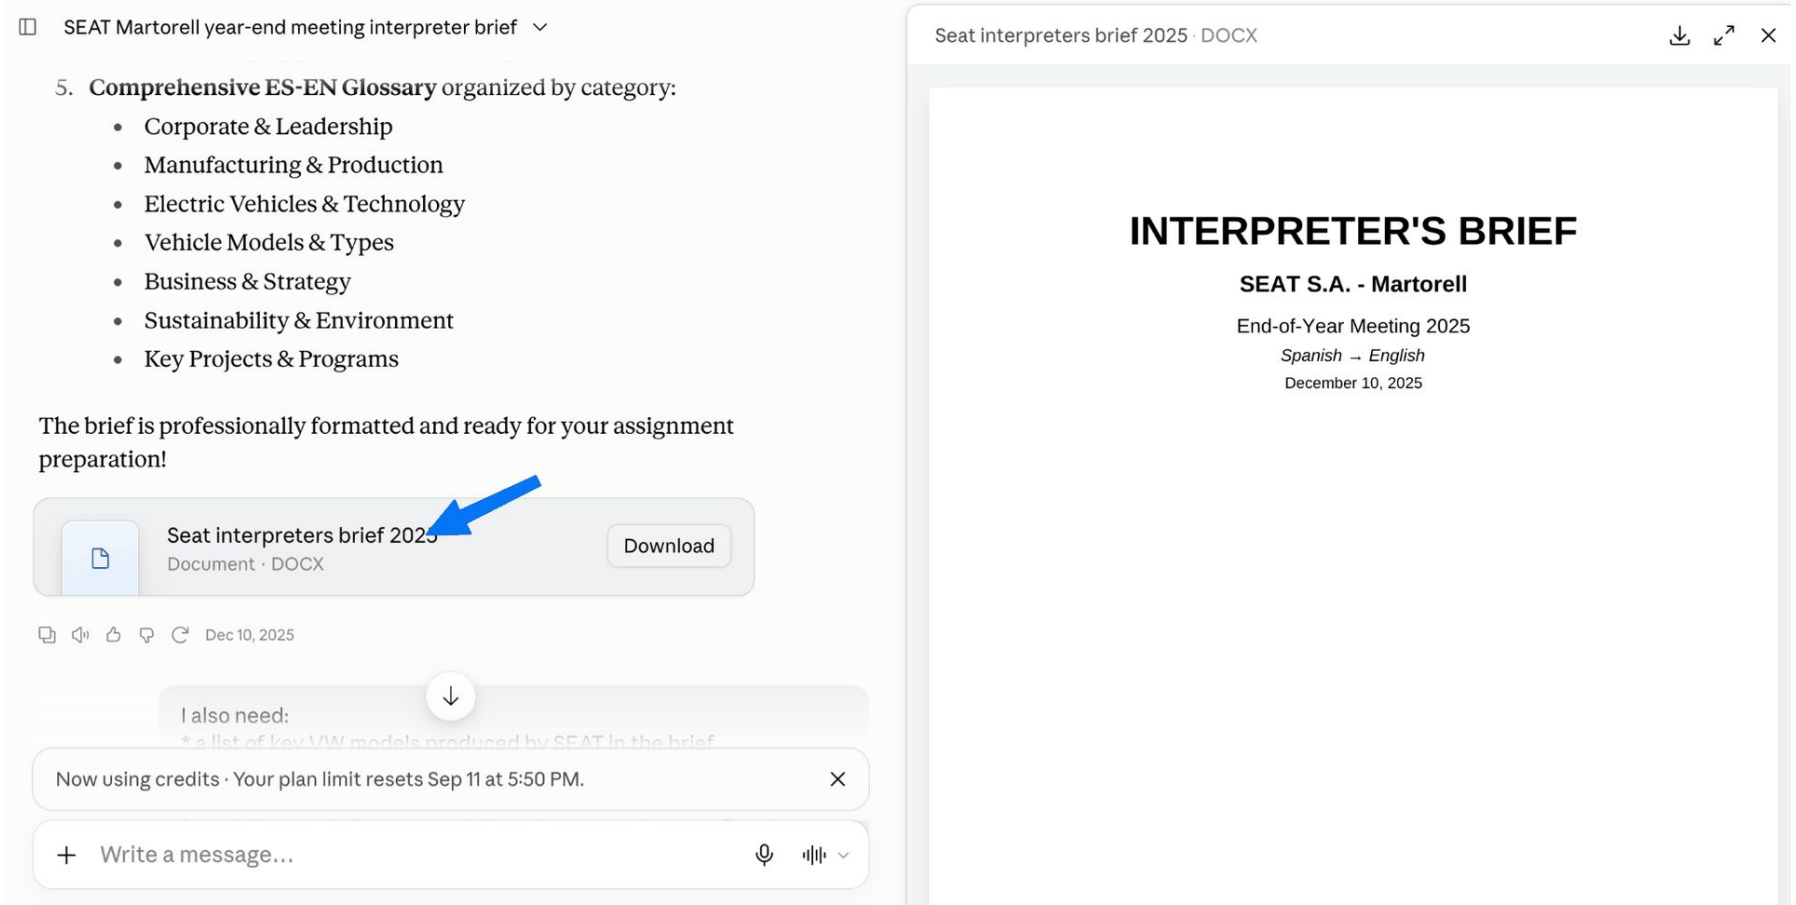

Official terms – not guesses

- Portuguese terms taken from the Parliament's own PT version of the report
- Terms not in the draft are marked "(suggested)"
- Claude even caught a mismatch between the two versions (one term was mistranslated)

INTERPRETER BRIEFING PROMPT (FEW/NO DOCS):
(CLAUDE, UPLOAD AGENDA)

Prepare an interpreter's briefing ([language pair]) for [event, date, place]. I've attached [the agenda / documents]. Give me:
1) context: who's organizing, why, and what's at stake;
2) a detailed overview of each agenda point;
3) key players and organizations, with names of officials;
4) likely talking points and fault lines;
5) a bilingual glossary of at least [50] terms, taking target-language terms from official versions of the documents where they exist and marking any others "(suggested)" in [language 1] and [language 2];
6) all named entities (people, organizations, places, acronyms);
7) sources.
Flag anything you couldn't verify.

Turn what we just did into a skill called [pre-translation-brief]. It should run whenever I attach or paste a text and say I'm about to translate it. Keep my numbered structure, the output format and my rule to flag anything you're unsure about. Show me the skill before you save it.

Weighing how to show the skill before saving.

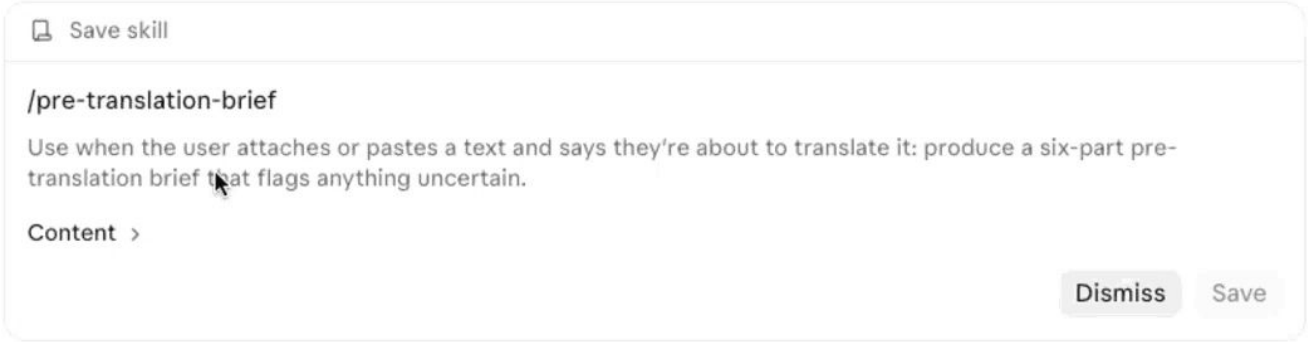

The skill is on the card above for you to review. Nothing is saved until you accept it there.

- What it does: it runs when you attach or paste a text and say you're about to translate it. It works for any language pair. EN to ES was just the example, and it takes the pair from your message.
- Added after our run: it checks headers, footers, comments and tracked changes in Word files. It computes weekdays when it checks dates. It also labels inferences as inferences.

The Interpreter Briefing Skill at work

Interpreter briefing – IEA press conference, COP31 (EN-ES-FR)

Nov 12, 2026 · @Josh

1. Context

IEA Executive Director Fatih Birol is billed to lead a press conference at COP31 on Friday, November 13, 2026, 4:30 p.m., in the Melvana press conference room, Blue Zone (Antalya). The time and room come from a UNFCCC live-updates listing seen in search results; the topic is not stated there, so expect a wrap-up of the IEA's COP31 work: electrification, energy security and methane.

- Event: COP31, the 31st UN climate conference, runs November 9–20, 2026 at the Antalya Expo Center. Türkiye hosts and runs the voluntary Action Agenda; Australia (Chris Bowen) is President of Negotiations and runs the formal talks.
- IEA's role: strategic partner of the COP31 Presidency. It advised on the framing and governance of the 35-by-35 Global Electrification Pledge, runs a pavilion, and will lead a Global Electrification Tracking Mechanism.
- Backdrop: an energy crisis tied to the Iran war and disruption in the Strait of Hormuz. Birol called it worse in severity than 1973, 1979 and 2022 combined (April 2026). Electrification is now pitched as both a security and a climate answer.

What has happened at COP31 so far (as of November 12)

- Nov 9: opening plenary; IEA pavilion opening with Birol and COP31 CEO Fatma Varank.
- Nov 10: Energy Day and Leaders' Summit start; IEA electrification report released; first Electrification Forum, co-hosted by the Presidency and the EU. An Electrification Board (chaired by the Presidency, IEA as secretariat) will run it beyond COP.
- Nov 11: Guterres and Stiell address leaders; Guterres said fossil fuels must go the way of the dinosaurs.
- Nov 12: leaders-level methane and non-CO_2 summit; UNFCCC launches the Net-Zero Recognition Framework.

Around the press conference

- Nov 13, 1:00–1:50 p.m.: "Energy priorities from Antalya to Addis Abeba", co-organized with the Presidency (Ethiopian Pavilion). COP32 is set for Addis Ababa in 2027.
- Nov 14: the traditional Saturday protest is expected, pending government approval.
- Nov 19: World Energy Outlook 2026 launch. Nov 20: scheduled close of COP31.

3. Key players and organizations

Titles were taken from sources dated between June and November 2026 and checked on November 12, 2026. Only Birol is confirmed for the press conference; the others may or may not appear.

Claude can now read and create files!

(And it's not bad for pesky layouts...)

MIRROR A PDF'S LAYOUT

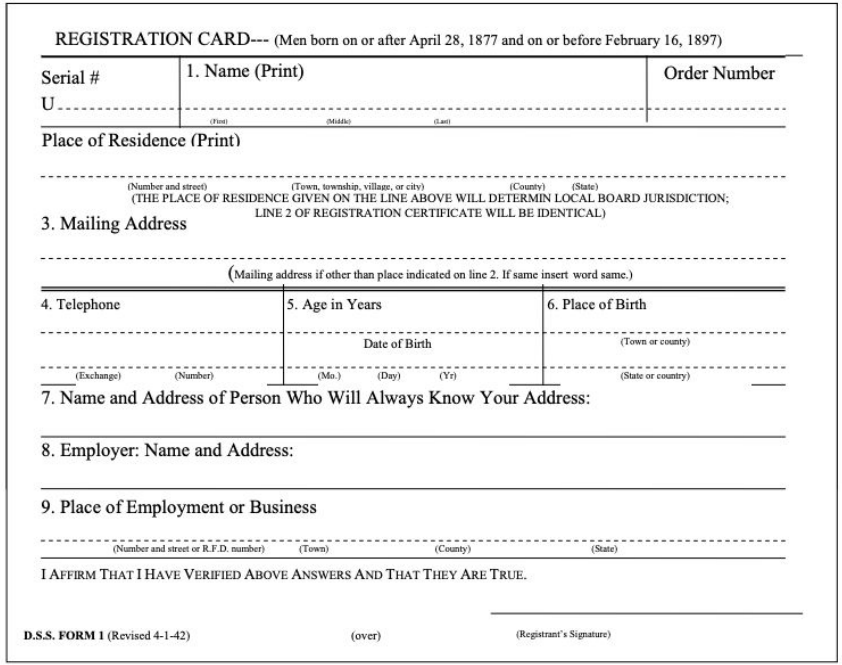

(CLAUDE, UPLOAD PDF)

Translate the attached PDF into [language].

Recreate it as an editable Word document that mirrors the original layout: same headings, tables, lists and order.

Don't summarize or leave anything out.

If you couldn't reproduce part of the layout, add a comment saying what changed.

Before and after: mirroring a PDF's layout

Transcribe this scanned document exactly as written, keeping line breaks. Put stamps, signatures and margin notes in [square brackets].

Then translate it into [language] as a two-column table: original | translation. List every word you couldn't read clearly, with your best guess and how sure you are.

Finally, recreate the document using the translation as an editable Word document that mirrors the original layout: same headings, tables, lists and order. Don't summarize or leave anything out. If you couldn't reproduce part of the layout, add a comment saying what changed.

A handwritten draft card: transcription, translation, unclear words

Where layout mirroring breaks

- Complex columns and text boxes
- Differences in text length
- Date notation (11/12/2026 vs 12 de noviembre de 2026)
- Text inside images
- Forms and fillable fields
- Translators' notes (illegible signature, stamp, etc.)
- Always check against the original

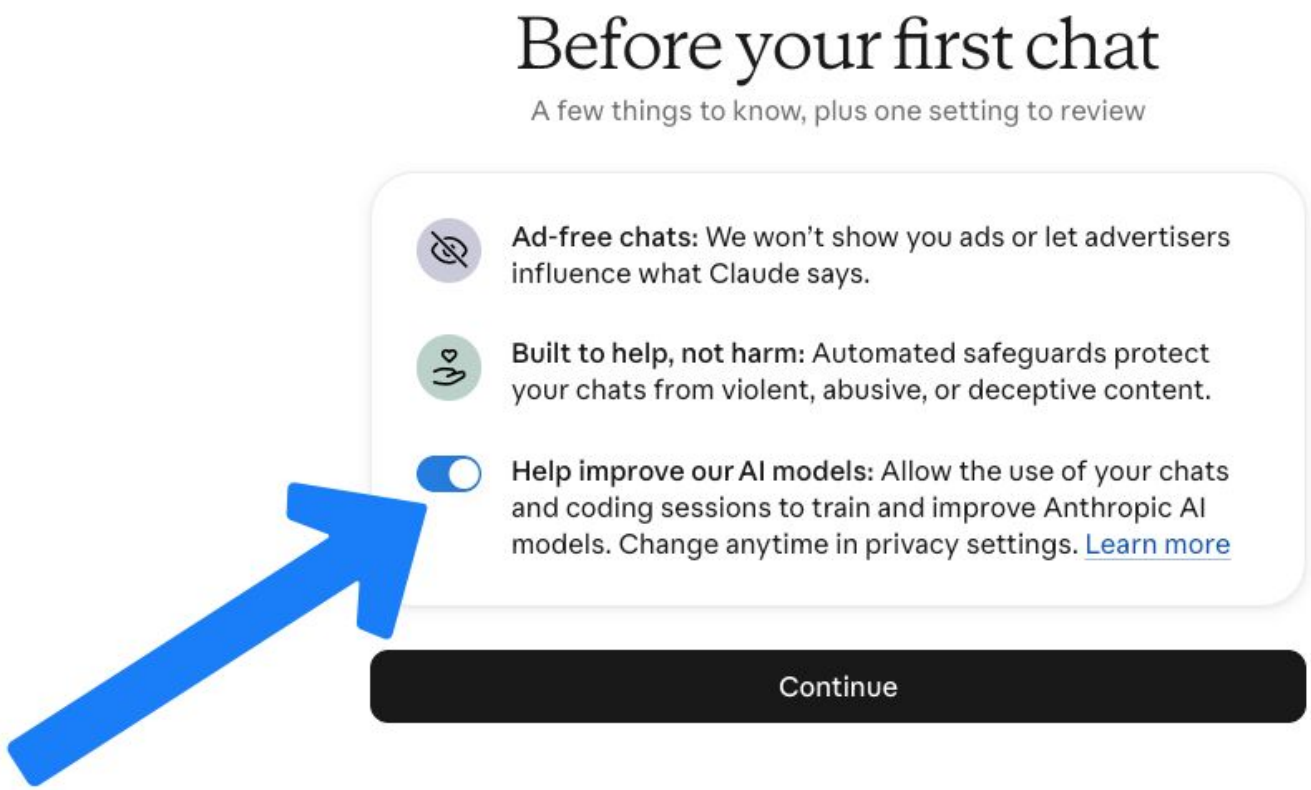

Ways to work with files and folders

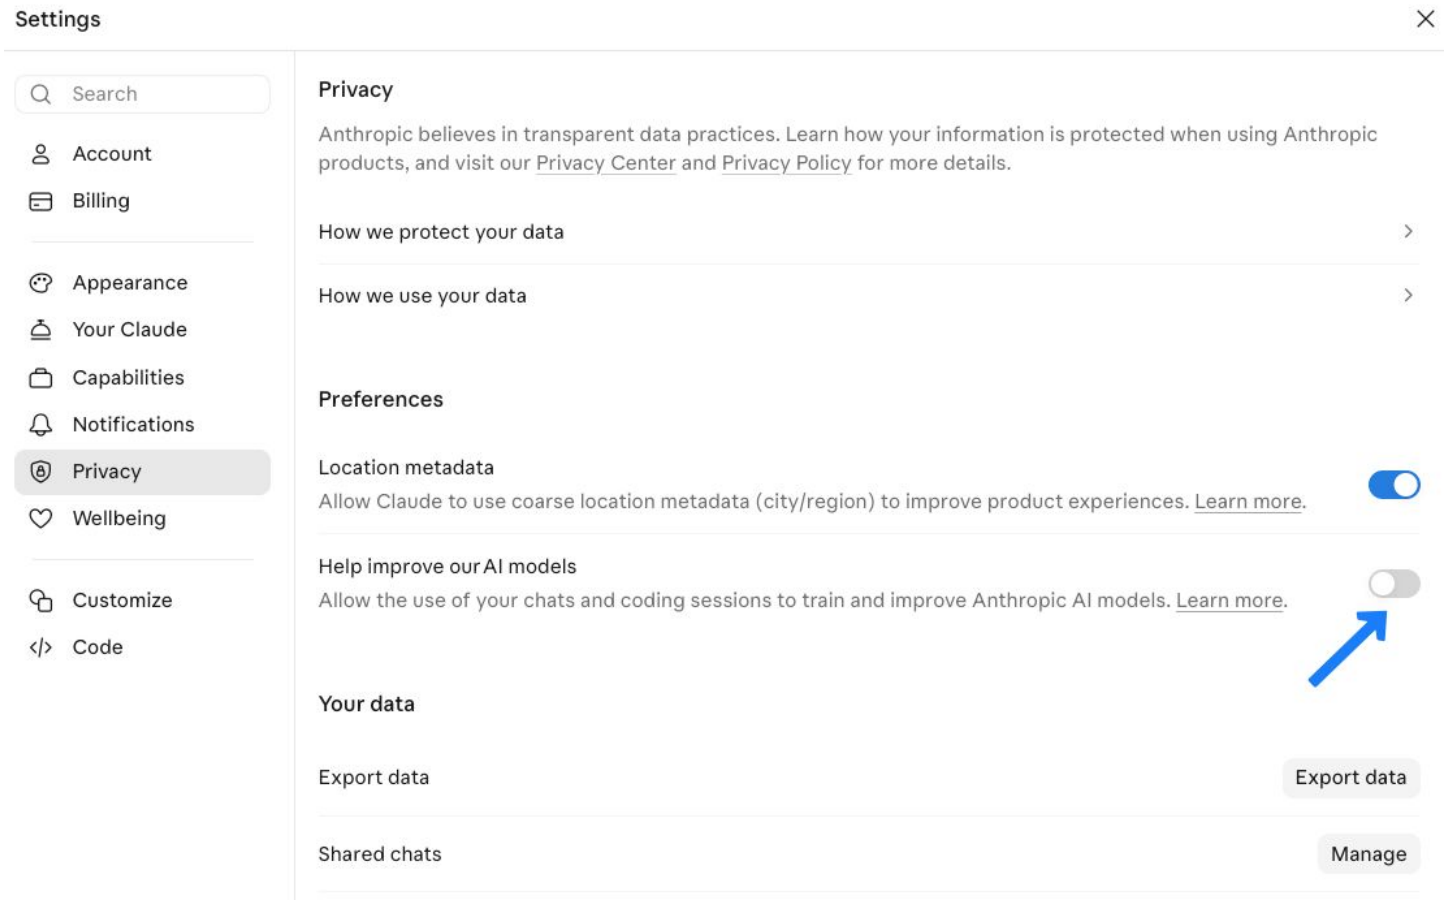

- Mirror formatting and layout
- QA: Check source vs. translation
- Compare two versions
- Extract a glossary from a bilingual file
- Check certified translation formatting
- Prepare from slides, docs, etc. – or translate them
- Check a whole folder (Claude Desktop, folder access)
- Rename and sort files (Claude Desktop, folder access)

- Shared links: anyone with the link can view
- Skills: only install ones you've read or trust

What can I paste? 🚦 Use the traffic-light model

🟢 Green: public texts, websites, published documents

🟡 Think twice: anonymized or paraphrased material (names, companies, figures replaced)

🔴 Never: client-confidential or personal data

When in doubt: check your NDA and client contract (and GDPR).

Build your own privacy tool

My starting point:

- Text to translate often arrives in a spreadsheet: reviews, surveys, product data
- Those files can also carry names, emails and order numbers
- I asked Claude to build a tool that cleans the file on my own computer
- Nothing leaves my computer!
- Then, I can use AI on the anonymized file

BUILD A PRIVACY TOOL

(CLAUDE, ARTIFACT – CSV FILE VERSION)

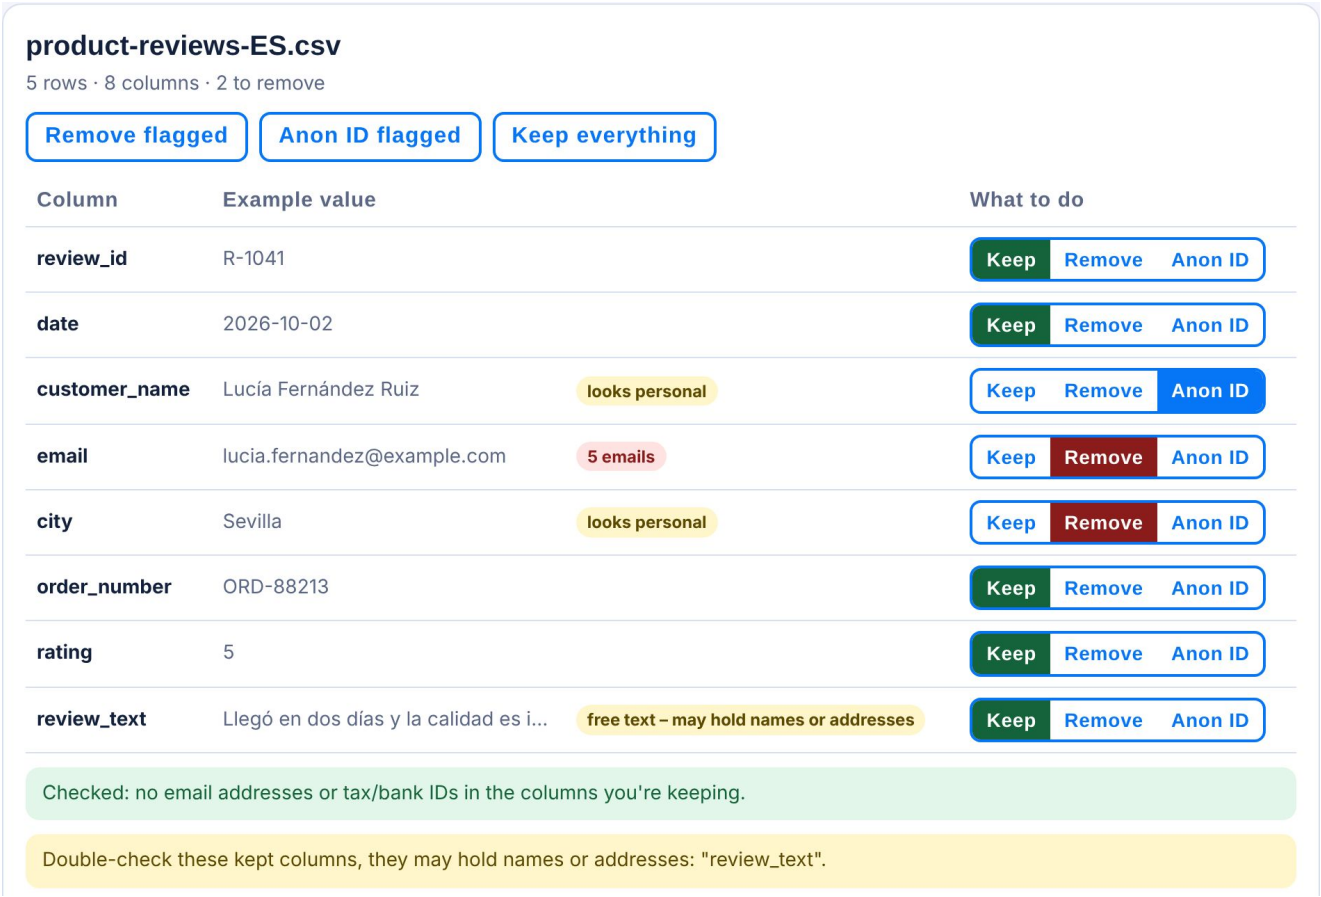

Build a tool that runs only on my computer, and blocks every network request, to clean CSV files before I translate them.

When I drop in a file, flag any column that looks personal: names, emails, addresses, phone numbers, tax or bank IDs.

For each column, let me choose Keep, Remove or Anon ID (replace each value with a code, so the same person always gets the same code).

Show me a preview, then let me download the cleaned file as a CSV that opens correctly in Excel with accents (UTF-8 with BOM).

Never change my original file.

Choose what to keep, remove or anonymize

Preview of your cleaned file (6 columns):

review_id	date	customer_name	order_number	rating	review_text
R-1041	2026-10-02	P_07488950c3	ORD-88213	5	Llegó en dos días y la calidad es increíble. La talla es un poco pequeña, así que recomiendo pedir una más.
R-1042	2026-10-03	P_f1121ed535	ORD-88240	3	El color no es exactamente como en la foto, pero el tejido es bueno. El servicio de atención al cliente respondió rápido.
R-1043	2026-10-05	P_29ed649c18	ORD-88301	4	Muy cómodo para el día a día. Lo lavé a 30 grados y no encogió nada.

The clean file: names become codes, the text to translate stays

More ways to use a privacy tool

- Glossaries and term exports: remove "created by" fields and client names
- Delegate and speaker lists: keep names and roles for the briefing, remove emails and phone numbers
- Surveys and customer feedback: keep the answers, remove who wrote them
- Anon IDs: match the same person across files without seeing who they are --> pop these back in after working with the file

Great, will do. Curious: Could we build an anonymizer that would also look in, say, word files and strip out any names and identifying information? Or would that require AI?

Yes, that's buildable, and most of it doesn't need AI. None of it needs a cloud AI like Claude, so the file never has to leave your computer. Each kind of data takes a different approach:

- Patterns: no AI needed. Emails, phone numbers, IBANs, dates, ID and case numbers and URLs all follow fixed formats, so simple rules catch them reliably.
- Your own list: no AI needed. You paste in the client name, the speakers and the project names, and the app replaces every match. For translators this is often the most reliable layer, because you already know who's in the file.
- Names you didn't list: a small local model. Catching "any name" means a step called named-entity recognition. It's a small model, not a chatbot, and it runs offline on your machine (Microsoft's free Presidio tool is one ready-made option). It's good but not perfect. It misses unusual names and names in some languages, so the app should highlight what it found and let you approve each one before anything is removed.

Two things matter more in Word than in CSV:

- Hidden data. Author name, comments, tracked changes and document properties can all identify the client, so the app needs to strip those as well.
- Reversible placeholders. If it swaps names for tags like [PERSON 1] and saves a private key file, you can translate the clean version with AI and then put the real names back automatically. That's arguably the killer feature for translators.

The tricky part is technical. Writing the edits back into the .docx without breaking formatting is fiddly, because Word often splits a name across several pieces of text internally. That's solvable, though.

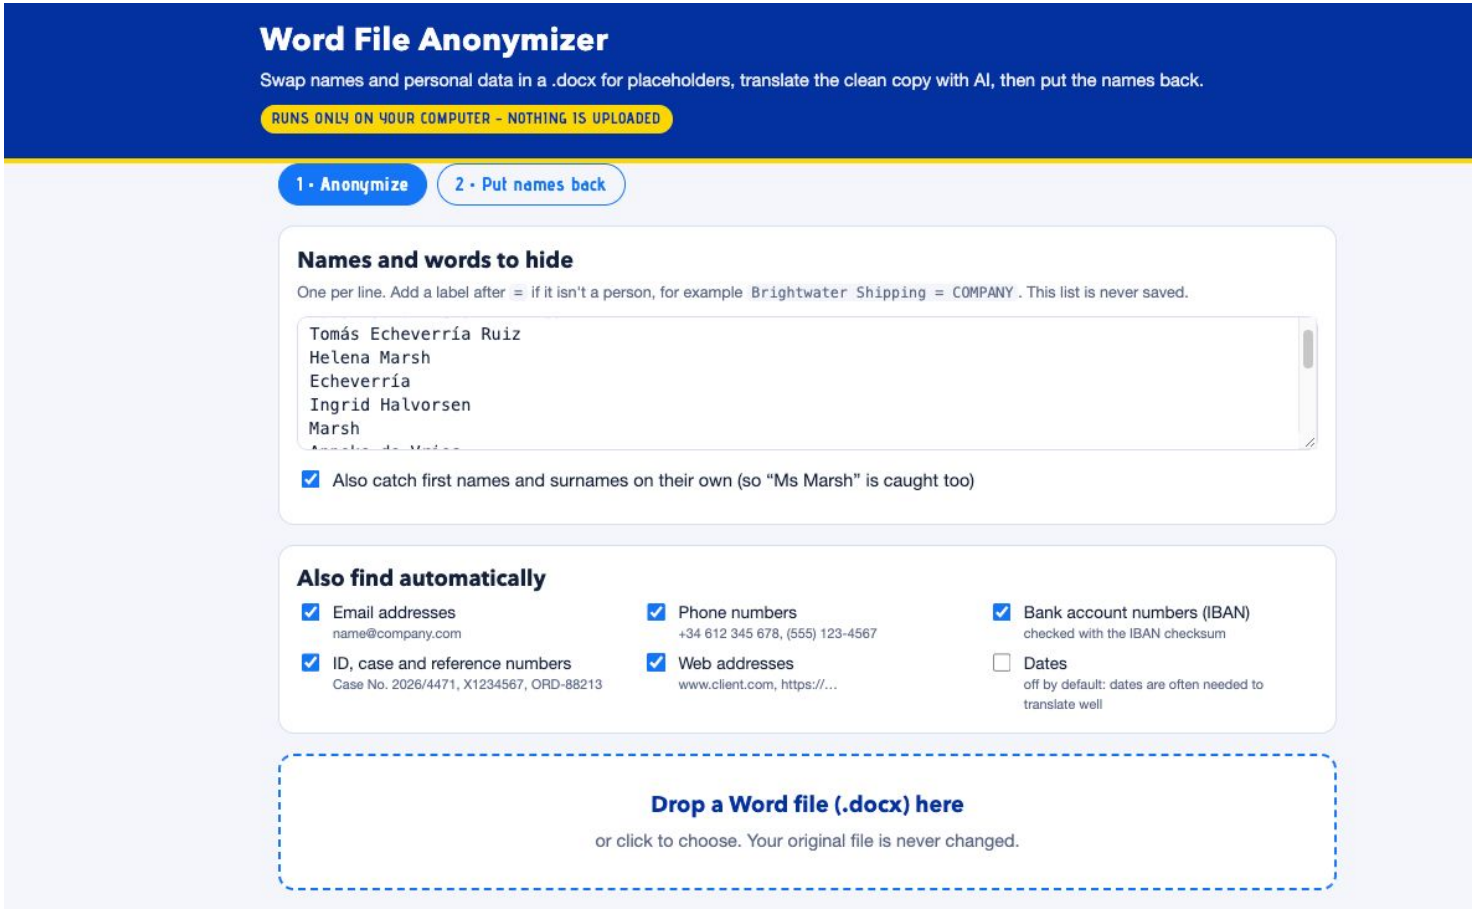

I'd suggest a browser app like your CSV one that handles Word files with the pattern and list layers, then adding the name-detection model as a second step. If you want a prototype, I can have it set up in its own thread so it doesn't get mixed in with the email work.

Yes, new thread to prototype this.

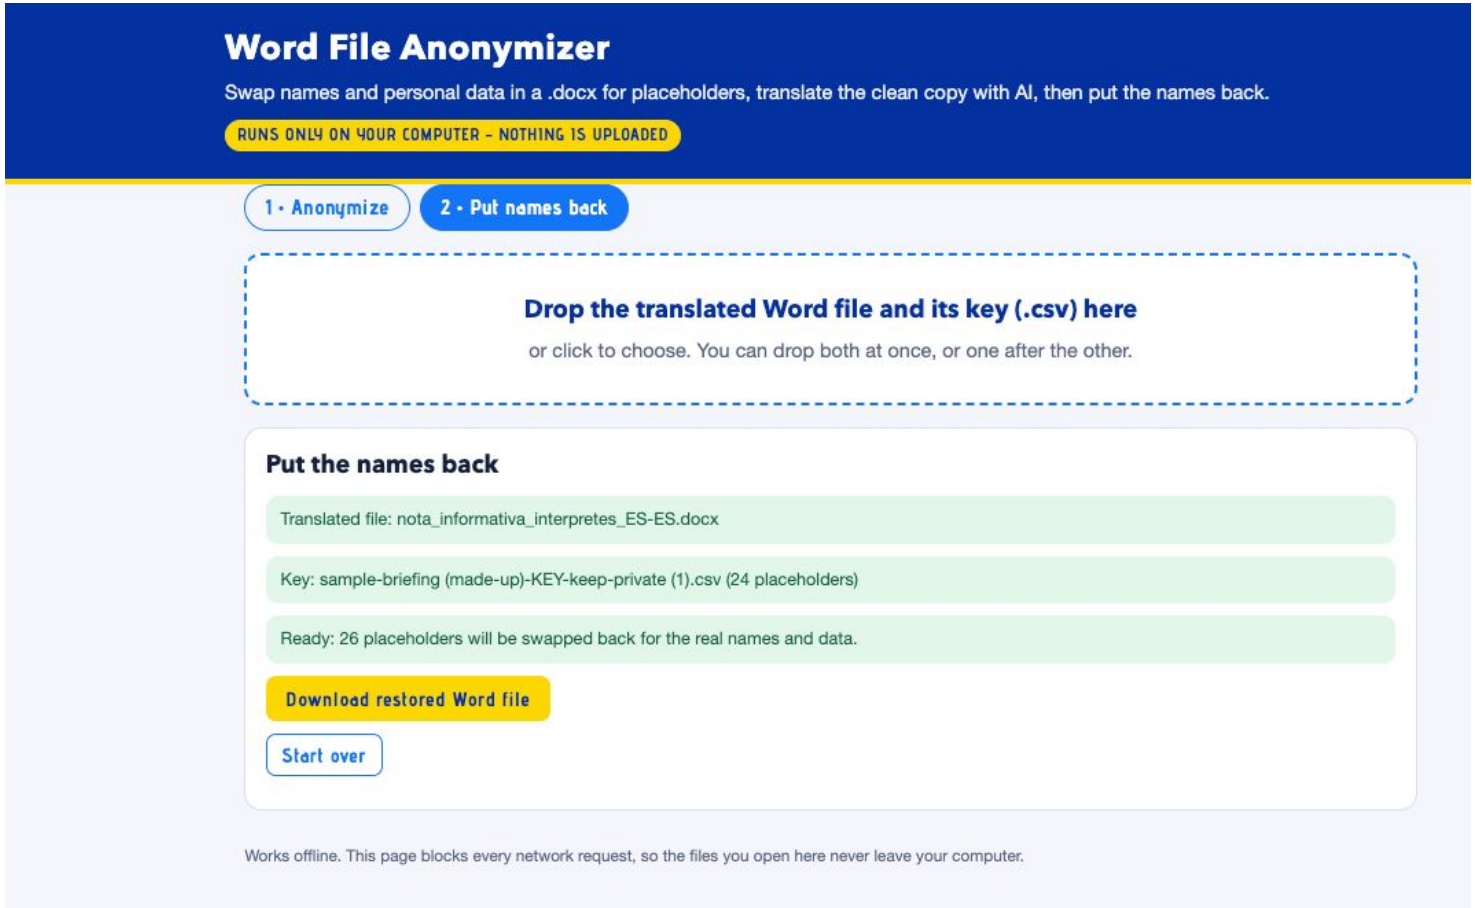

The Word File Anonymizer

You're intrigued by AI – but you're also concerned

What was your biggest takeaway? Any other questions?

Would you like a Claude Bootcamp?

A. I’d definitely sign up!
B. I might be interested.
C. Nope, not for me.
